

HISTORY 153

This is a list of many important names, terms, and events. Although long, it covers the entire semester. Remember, too, that it is not totally comprehensive or exhaustive, e.g., names like John Kennedy or Harry Truman are missing. There may also be other items covered in the readings or lectures that are not found here. Still, if you have a basic understanding of these entries and can write three to five sentences about each, you should be in excellent shape for the exam IDs and should have a sound basis for answering all exam questions.
